

BORAH ASSAILS STATE PROHI REFERENDUMS; TINKHAM ASKS PROBE

DRY LAW NEEDED BY CIVILIZATION, STATES SENATOR

Borah Expresses Willingness, However, to Have People Express Themselves in Election.

NEW YORK STAND HIT BY SPEAKER

Demands That Political Candidates Be Forced to Declare Themselves on Prohibition Issue.

Baltimore, Md., May 30.—(Special.)—Willingness to have a reconsideration of prohibition in a strictly legal referendum was expressed by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, in an address to the Presbyterian general assembly here, but he attacked the current modificationist campaign as an effort to nullify the constitution and he said that modern mechanical civilization demands prohibition.

"I would kick into the waste basket any referendum which would compromise either in letter or in spirit with the execution of the constitution," Borah declared.

Attacks Election. Borah attacked the New York referendum, declaring that if each state is to determine what is intoxicating liquor the result would be an abdication of the federal government's authority and constitutional anarchy.

He also demanded that political candidates be forced to declare themselves on prohibition and not be permitted to hide behind a referendum. "A candidate who has no conviction upon this question and no position to announce before election will likely betray both sides after the election," Borah said.

"I believe the liquor traffic to be a curse to the human family. Not only is the record of the centuries made up against it, but now the modern industrial world with its complex and delicate machinery asks that it be banished."

Willing to Vote. "I would not, myself, interpose obstruction tactics in the way of the nation again considering the wisdom or unwisdom of the 18th amendment. I am perfectly willing if the votes are at hand and the procedure is in the orderly, constitutional way, that the matter should again be considered in the light of these years of experience. "The vote of the people upon the issue should not exempt candidates and leaders from declaring their positions upon this question. A candidate who has no conviction upon this question and no position to announce before election will likely betray both sides after the election. The people are entitled to have the views and the judgment of those to whom they are asked to entrust great public responsibility. This, and all other great problems of state, demand men with convictions before as well as after election."

"We are advised by the newspapers that in one great state they are hunting for a candidate for governor who has no view on this liquor question and who has never expressed himself. They overlook one qualification. Their candidate should not only have no views on the subject, but he should be incapable of forming, or entertaining, any views. He would be an ideal candidate in this spasm of referendum."

Modernism and Fundamentalism

These terms, which are used to designate the opposites in thought regarding the tenets of belief in several church denominations, are also applicable to business.

But in business modernism builds on fundamentals and is sustained by them.

The modern method of merchandising is to advertise, and the success of the advertising is based on the fundamental of placing it in the morning newspaper; because the morning newspaper goes into the home at a period of the day when there is time to read the news and the advertisements.

The fundamental base of good buying is the modern idea of advertisement reading. Advertisements in The Constitution are the last offerings for the day's business.

First Woman To Graduate In Medicine

State Medical College Gives Degree Today to First Georgia Woman.

Augusta, Ga., May 30.—(Special.)—Among the graduates of the medical department of the University of Georgia, who will receive their degrees Monday night, will be Miss Loree Florence, of Athens, Ga., who will have the distinction of being the first woman to receive a degree from the state medical college, or to receive a doctor of medicine degree from any institution in the state of Georgia, it is believed.

Four years ago when Miss Florence entered the medical college here, she was blazing a trail where no other woman had trod. The road seemed to be a hard one, but she had the determination and the courage, and now she has finished her course with a wonderful record. She came to the medical college immediately after taking two years at the University of Georgia in Athens toward the bachelor of science in medicine, which is required of those entering the medical school.

Prior to entering the university, she secured her bachelor of arts degree at Shorter college, Rome. Because of her high record, Miss Florence will be eligible for the Alpha Omega Alpha, national honorary fraternity recently installed at the medical college, and which corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa in its particular field of scholastic attainments.

Miss Florence is to continue her studies in internship in Philadelphia, it is understood.

VARIED CALENDAR FACING CONGRESS IN COMING WEEK

French Debt Agreement and Migratory Bird Legislation Lead Hodge-Podge List.

Washington, May 30.—(AP)—The French debt agreement, migratory bird legislation, farm relief and the rivers and harbors appropriation bill make up the hodge-podge calendar congress will tackle this week after its Memorial day recess tomorrow.

House leaders have arranged a program calling for action on the French debt Tuesday and the transmission of that problem to the senate where a long fight is threatened unless resort is made to night sessions to wear down the opposition.

Wednesday the house will seek to clear up many bills on the calendar and will devote the remainder of the week to the $36,000,000 rivers and harbors measure with its highly controverted lake water diversion section.

Migratory birds will continue to claim the attention of the senate Tuesday with a movement on foot to force a vote on a proposal to involve the rule limiting each senator to an hour's discussion on the bill. This is the second cloture movement at this session, the drastic rule having been applied during the world court debate.

Unless the bird bill is disposed of speedily, it will divert the attention of business capital, have financed this organization and its activities, whose purpose was to destroy the private rights of citizens, yet expecting their rights of private property still to be maintained and safeguarded.

ATTACK LAUNCHED ON ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TACTICS

Tinkham Will Ask Committee to Ascertain What Fees Have Been Paid to Members of House.

LOBBY IS CHARGED TO PROHI LEAGUE

Representative Asserts Organization Controls Government "Through Fear and By Money."

Washington, May 30.—(AP)—Creation of a special house committee to ascertain whether Representative Louis C. Cramton, republican, Michigan, or any other house member has received money or fees from the Anti-Saloon league or any other organization interested in legislation pending before congress, is proposed in a resolution drafted by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts.

The resolution, which Mr. Tinkham said would be introduced Tuesday is prefaced by four declarations, the first of which asserts that Mr. Cramton recently stated to a New York newspaper correspondent that "from time to time he has received money or fees from an ecclesiastical and political organization known as the Anti-Saloon league, or its branches or subsidiaries, which statement was published April 21, and has not been denied."

Assault Agency. Mr. Tinkham in a statement today assailed the league as an agency that "controls the government of the United States through fear and by money, so that free government has become a mockery and a phantom."

"Its strength is such," he said, "that it constitutes a government within a government and has suppressed free action by the American congress, whose committees cringe and abuse themselves before the orders of its agents and servants. It has placed those who believe in liberty and the separation of the church and state in fatal conflict with those who are bent on bondage and ecclesiastical political control. The issues which it has introduced cannot be settled by compromise and they threaten the very solidity of the union."

"This ecclesiastical and political organization has packed the federal bench and has destroyed confidence in its intellectual integrity. It has rendered successfully into the supreme court with its sinister propaganda, and it has appointed United States attorneys and has dominated the prohibition enforcement unit."

Mr. Tinkham said the league paid campaign expenses of Andrew J. Volstead, a former chairman of the house judiciary committee, and author of the Volstead act, and that "it maintains an unscrupulous professional and highly paid lobby at the capitol."

He asserted that "it has been estimated that the league has expended $100,000,000, and that the head of its professional lobby has admitted that $2,500,000 was spent in one year and $100,000 in a single congressional election."

"It is known that certain millionaires," he continued, "in conjunction with managers of large aggregates of business capital, have financed this organization and its activities, whose purpose was to destroy the private rights of citizens, yet expecting their rights of private property still to be maintained and safeguarded."

"The league works with money in secret, and yet this irresponsible power now governs the United States. This organization stands through one of its principal agents not long ago that it had lied and bribed for the attainment of its ends."

Spain and France Clash 40 FOREIGN CITIZENS STONED AND BEATEN BY MOBS IN SHANGHAI

SPANIARDS INSIST ON HIS EXECUTION

On Abd-El-Krim's Fate

It is admitted here the French favor treating the Riff chieftain as a defeated enemy with privileges customary in France, with a state allowance provided he swears fealty to the Sultan of Morocco and pledges never to attempt to foment trouble again.

The Spanish press, public opinion and government insist that the same treatment Abd-El-Krim inflicted on the captured Spaniards during the Melilla debacle in 1921, be applied to the Riffian—not torturing him, but they indicate he should be hanged or shot.

HONORS ARE DENIED TO FALLEN RIFFIAN. (Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

By LORIMER HAMMOND. Rabat, Morocco, May 30.—After elaborate preparations for Abd-El-Krim's reception at Fez, the French authorities have changed their minds. They now have decided not to let the former Emir of the Riff come to the camp of his conquerors and be officially treated as a fallen hero. They are going to be careful not to make him look like a native Napoleon on his way to some eastern Elba in turban and sandals.

A magnificent palace belonging to one of the former grand viziers, which had been set aside for Krim, will not be opened to him. It also has been decided not to permit a ceremonial reception.

GREEN ADVOCATES PORTUGAL TO HAVE NEW GOVERNMENT UNDER CABECADAS

House Is Scheduled To Consider Settlement On Tuesday of the Coming Week.

Washington, May 30.—(AP)—With the house prepared to take up the $4,026,000,000 French war debt settlement Tuesday, Chairman Green of the committee, which has jurisdiction over a bill to authorize its acceptance, today made public a committee report warmly advocating ratification of the agreement.

Mr. Green also made public a minority report by Representative Rainey, of Illinois, a democrat on the committee, opposing acceptance, and asserting that he "cannot see how a member of congress, under his oath, can vote to give away the enormous amount of money that we are asked to in this settlement."

Economic Conditions. The chairman who drafted the committee report, reviewed the economic condition of France and its debts other than to the United States, asserting that France began "the war burdened by a debt larger than any other nation in the world."

"It is sometimes thought that France is taxed lightly," Mr. Green asserted, "while it would appear that the rate in proportion to the national income is somewhat less in France than in England, it must be remembered that the per capita income in England is very much higher than in France, and, being higher, the margin of subsistence left after taxes are paid is much larger for the citizens of England than for those of France."

Conditions Worse. "It ought to be clear that the condition of France is worse than it was a year ago; and that if undue pressure was put upon it, it should be rendered unable to take the measures which will be necessary to balance its budget and stabilize its franc it would be idle to expect anything whatever to be paid on the debt owing this nation."

Mr. Rainey asserted it has been reported that as soon as the settlement is ratified a loan of $300,000,000 will be placed by the Morgan and allied banks with France, adding that "it has seemed to me always that these debt settlements are being made and these tremendous sacrifices of the money which belongs to the taxpayers of the United States are being commensurate in order that the clients of the New York banks may have opportunities to invest their money in foreign securities, which will yield 2 percent, more than any similar investment."

Mrs. Inman Shows Progress Of Fine Arts Department

MANY GEORGIA ACTIVITIES ARE MENTIONED

Atlantic City, N. J., May 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Samuel Martin Inman, of Atlanta, in presenting to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the report of the fine arts department of which she is chairman, had the pleasure of being able to report unusual activity in fine arts among club women of her own state. The Fort Valley peach blossom festival, the Albany peach blossom festival, the Cornelia apple blossom festival and the Thomasville rose show all sponsored by the federated clubs were mentioned as were activities in Moultrie, Atlanta, Savannah and the circuit exhibitions of the Southern States Art League.

Special mention was made also of activities among club women of Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana. Preservation of Louisiana folk lore and dramatization of Louisiana stories, a state grand opera week and a campaign to make every person familiar with the state song were reported in that state.

Kentucky club women are assisting the movement to make the home where Foster wrote "The Old Kentucky Home," a state shrine and are encouraging the movement to preserve every bit of the folk songs of the mountain section and negro population. Hymn memory contests, drama study and the reproduction of simple plays, all were noted.

The fine arts department of Tennessee federated clubs, the report stated, has cooperated, initiated and educated in conserving American beauty, assisting the exhibition of American artists and the Parthenon and working for clean literature.

NATION WILL PAY TRIBUTE TODAY TO WAR VICTIMS

Observance in Washington Will Center Around Exercises Held in Arlington National Cemetery.

WREATHS PLACED ON WILSON TOMB

France Will Stand at Silent Salute Today in Honor of 30,557 Americans Buried There.

Washington, May 30.—(AP)—Observance of Memorial day by the national capital tomorrow center about Arlington National cemetery, where in the early afternoon, President Coolidge will deliver the principal address at exercises conducted by the Grand Army of the Republic.

Earlier in the day there will be a procession of Grand Army veterans and others who will place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington and decorate the graves of the war dead.

Speakers at the exercises in addition to the president, will include Senator Willis, of Ohio, and Dr. Charles V. Petters, commander of the Department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic. The marine band will furnish music and the program will be broadcast by radio. All government departments will be closed during the day and congress will stand in recess while a number of services will be conducted at cemeteries in and about the capital.

Potomac Memorial Service. The observances were begun here today when the U. S. S. Porpoise left the navy yard with veterans of the Spanish war on board, conducted a memorial service on the Potomac, going as far as Mount Vernon and cast flowers on the waters. A similar service will be conducted tomorrow from the Syph, the yacht of the secretary of the navy, which will have on board members of Admiral Robert E. Peary ship number 427 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Graves of soldiers, sailors and marines were decorated today by American Legion posts while memorial services were conducted by the Spanish War veterans and by civic, patriotic and military societies.

Memorial services today in the amphitheater of the National Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul were attended by 30,000 persons. Wreaths were placed on the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, by representatives of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Senator Hiram Bingham, Connecticut, and Bishop Freeman, of Washington, delivered memorial addresses.

CHATTANOOGA PLANS EXERCISES TODAY. Chattanooga, May 30.—(AP)—Memorial day exercises to be held Monday will be marked by a military parade in which troops of the sixth cavalry United States army, and one hundred and ninth cavalry, Tennessee national guard, will participate. Following the parade ceremonies will be held at National cemetery and graves of fallen soldiers will be strewn with flowers. The orator of the day will be Fred W. Frazer, city commissioner.

FRANCE WILL STAND AT SILENT SALUTE. Paris, May 30.—(United News)—France will stand at silent salute

"Champeen Jail Bird" Adds To His Claims To Title

PALMER PEASE DEFENDS RIGHT TO "BELT"

BY LOY WARWICK. Palmer Pease, 80-year-old negro, of extreme misfortune, is in jail again. This announcement will be greeted with a deal of astonishment by many who had no idea he had been out of jail.

Palmer's chief claim to distinction is that he has probably spent more time than any other five individuals put together on county road and city street work, in addition to the fact that during his spasmodic moments of freedom, he has devoutly progressed and enthusiastically preached every religion known in this section of the United States, some dogmas being introduced by the versatile Palmer himself.

Georgia corn whiskey is responsible for Palmer's incarceration, according to the police blotter. Sunday afternoon he took a dive through a windshield and landed in a car in which he was riding collided with another machine. The driver of the car in which Palmer was disporting himself abandoned the car and fled. The other machine which figured in the accident was occupied by L. A. Hopkins, 433 Hill street, who was driving. Palmer's slight injury was the only damage.

Call Officers W. A. Goode and J. A. Shumake were called to the hospital and found Palmer busily engaged in telling attaches of Grady hospital of the sins of the world and the virtues of Palmer. A heavy aroma of Peters street ambrosia permeated the hospital. Palmer was, as usual, "in his cups," and it was necessary to arrest him, police said. His arrival at the station almost overwhelmed him for he was greeted on all sides by familiar faces in familiar uniforms. Palmer is an entertainer surpassed by few of his hue. He will be given the privilege of entertaining Judge Calloway this morning.

The nearest Palmer ever came to getting "big rich," he says, was the time he headed the coming of the end of the world. Angels were to arrive at a certain hour of the morning. Palmer knew all about it—even to the minute and second of the scheduled arrival. Those who wished to be borne upwards must be on time, certainly. And Palmer sold them watches.

Of the 80 Christmas days in Palmer's somewhat doubtful career, the old negro has spent but three of them out of jail, he boasts of the title of "champeen jail bird."

Berlin Stars Demand Right Of Marriage

Screen Queens Threaten Strike When Asked to Bar Matrimony.

(Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) Berlin, May 30.—Berlin's movie queens are threatening a general strike against the directors. They believe in matrimony. The directors consider it detrimental to the artists and are endeavoring to induce the young queens to sign new contract binding them not to marry or leave Germany without the company's consent.

The movie stars are refusing to sign the anti-matrimony documents. The movement is headed by the young Polish actress, Dina Galin, known as the Pola Negri, of comedy. She was scheduled to appear in U. F. A.'s production, "A Modern Day-Afternoon," but the company insisted she sign the celibacy contract. Miss Galin refused to give up her "personal liberty" and the other Berlin stars are following her example.

POLICE RESERVES PATROL SHANGHAI TO PREVENT WAR

Action Follows Anniversary Demonstration Over Shooting of Students by British.

Shanghai, May 30.—Forty foreigners were stoned and beaten by Chinese mobs Sunday night following anniversary demonstrations over the shooting of Chinese students by British soldiers one year ago.

Volunteer police were patrolling the city at midnight with orders to remain at their posts Monday due to increasing fear that the rioting which had temporarily subsided would be continued.

The killing of a Chinese riksha coolie by a British negro soldier in Nanking has caused the danger of serious clashes to spread to that city and it is feared that the entire southern section of China may become involved in the outbreak unless it is checked immediately.

Shanghai had looked forward to Sunday with fear. Foreigners had been warned against appearing in certain sections of the city and additional police had been put on duty to guard against just such an outbreak as occurred.

2 Chinese Killed. Fatalities thus far have been confined to two Chinese, one in Shanghai and one in Nanking.

First outbreaks occurred in the afternoon, shortly after a student demonstration honoring those of their comrades who were shot last year had gotten under way. One European and several Chinese were slightly injured in the encounter which began in the vicinity of Nanking road. Police and civil volunteers patrolled the district and restored quiet after this preliminary clash and machine guns were set in place to warn the would-be rioters.

Armored cars patrolled the streets and for a time it seemed that the Chinese groups had ended their attacks.

The clash which alarmed both Chinese officials and foreigners, however, occurred early in the evening. Motor cars were overturned by the angry student groups and sympathizers, several street cars were burned. Shop windows were broken by the rioters whose ferocity seemed to increase with each new lawless act.

Forty foreigners were attacked by the mob and almost before they realized that they were the objects of the onslaught of the shouting, cursing Chinese they were stoned and beaten.

Reserves Called. Police reserves were called into action and 1,500 civilian volunteers were placed with them on guard over shops and homes of prominent foreigners. The general manager of the French street car system, in Nanking, was seriously injured before the volunteer police and the reserves had control of the situation.

Complete order was not restored until civilian foreign volunteers had killed a Chinese hoodlum who was destroying street lamps. Shortly before midnight the city was quiet but every guard remained on duty to protect the foreign quarter and the business district throughout the night.

FIRST OF SUMMER OPERA STARS HERE

Miss Mary Lella Patterson, first of the principals of Atlanta's own summer musical comedy company to arrive for rehearsals, will reach the city today, ready to begin work.

Miss Patterson will not have to travel far because she lives in Griffin, where she was born and reared. She will be the only Georgia girl among the principals, unless one of the chorus fulfills the traditions of the stage short story and becomes a star overnight. You never can tell.

The "girl from Griffin," however, is no amateur. She studied several years under Estelle Lieblich in New York, won her way through several engagements for small parts, and recently had a prominent role in the very successful musical comedy "The Countess Maritza" on Broadway. She left that company to come to Atlanta, because she wanted to come home and

PYTHIANS TO HONOR MOORE AT BANQUET

The banquet and reception to grand Chancellor W. G. Moore at 6:30 tonight at the Henry Grady hotel is in appreciation of his work during the term which closes with the convention of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, at Tybee Island on June 21.

Prominent members of the order who will be among the speakers are Leon C. Greer, George Eubanks, Rev. Russell K. Smith, L. P. Lazenby, president of the Pythian Council, and Lee Terrell, captain of the military branch of the Knights of Kobrasan.

Colonel James W. Austin will preside. Tickets to the banquet may be procured at 39 Peachtree Arcade.

because she wanted an opportunity to sing not one role but many.

Rehearsals of the chorus music have been under way on the stage of the Atlanta theater for several weeks, and already the big chorus is familiar with the music of nearly all of the eight productions to be given.

And all for $88.00.

Youth Defended By Local Pastor In Special Sermon

Confidence in the youth of the nation was expressed Sunday by Dr. C. R. Stauffer, pastor of the First Christian church, in his sermon at the night service hour. The pastor declared that he believed, "in spite of those who magnify faults of the young people," that youth today is considering more seriously the problems of life than did the youth of any generation of young people before today.

He pointed out that there are more young people in our colleges and high schools "preparing for life's responsibilities than ever before and thousands of young people within the next few weeks will be in attendance in the hundreds of interdenominational young people's conferences that will be held from one end of the country to the other."

Sunday was "youth day" at the church and fitting exercises were held in all departments. In the absence of Mr. Stauffer at the morning service, Dr. Elsie Thomas, superintendent of the Sunday school, spoke on "Young People and the Church." Dr. Stauffer delivered the commencement sermon at the Monroe High school, at Monroe, Ga., Sunday morning.

POST-MORTEM URGED IN DILWORTH DEATH

Chicago, May 30.—(AP)—A post-mortem examination of the body of E. K. Dilworth, 68-year-old millionaire of Galesburg, who died here Thursday, was ordered today after charges that he died under mysterious circumstances were made by Miss Mildred Dilworth, 60, a sister. She rushed to his bedside by special train from Galesburg, and reached him shortly before his death.

An attendance of 60 to 75 is expected, as the meeting comes on a legal holiday.

LETTER CARRIERS MEET AT INDIAN SPRINGS

Jackson, Ga., May 30.—(Special)—The annual meeting of the Sixth District Rural Letter Carriers' association will be held at Indian Springs Monday, May 31, and local carriers are making plans to entertain the visitors with a barbecue. The address of welcome will be made by Judge H. M. Fletcher, of Jackson, and Congressman Sam Rutherford is expected to speak.

Officers of the district association are L. T. Travis, Riverdale, president; B. E. Andrews, The Rock, secretary and treasurer.

DR. DEBEVER QUITS POST HERE

Dr. Ben J. Potter, organist and choir director of the Trinity Methodist church for the past seven years, resigned his position Sunday to become organist of All Souls' Episcopal church at Biltmore, N. C., and soloist organist at Grove Park Inn, Asheville. The Biltmore church is the church of the Vanderbilts and the Hon. John Cecil who married Miss Cornelia Vanderbilt, is a member of the music committee.

The inn organ is said to be one of the premier organ positions of the south. The organ at the Inn is one of the best in the United States and the concert gives daily attract large numbers of tourists and others who live in that section several months of each year.

Dr. Potter came to Atlanta from Detroit in war community service during the world war and has been prominently identified with the musical life of Atlanta since that time. Trinity choir, under his direction, has become one of the outstanding musical organizations of the city and has the distinction of being the first vested choir in Methodist churches of Georgia. It is a work of Dr. Potter and the choir has attracted wide attention.

For the past year Dr. Potter has been head of the department of organ at Brenau college, Gainesville, Ga., which position he also gives up to accept his new work.

Dr. Potter was born in England, is a fellow in the Guild of St. Cecilia, a fellow in the Church Organists' Society of London and an associate of the Royal College of Organists.

He and his family expect to leave Atlanta for their new home about June 15.

PEACE IN SYRIA SEEN BY JOUVENEL

Alexandria, Egypt, May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Henry De Jovenel, French high commissioner to Syria, believes that peace is coming to Syria, immediately and unflinchingly, as it is coming to the Rif, and he hopes with very little additional bloodshed.

He made this known to the Associated Press correspondent at the course of an interview obtained last evening under unusual circumstances, the talk being carried out entirely by wireless.

The steamer Sphinx, bearing the high commissioner to France, left Alexandria at one o'clock yesterday afternoon. The steamer Pierre Loti, aboard which the Associated Press correspondent was proceeding to Syria, was then 200 miles away, bound for Alexandria. At the request of the Associated Press, the two vessels, belonging to the Messageries Maritimes of France, got into communication, and M. de Jovenel was requested to come to the wireless room of the Sphinx at 6 p. m.

Promptly at the stroke of six, the wireless of the Pierre Loti picked up the Sphinx less than 60 miles away and what is believed to be the first completed absolute wireless interview of a statesman by a newspaperman began.

"Why are you returning to Paris at this stage of affairs in Syria?" the correspondent queried.

The wireless speaker out the reply—"I am returning to France because I consider all danger is passed, the war is finished, submission and surrender of the Druze tribesmen are progressing along the lines of a regularly ordered schedule; few bands are left in the field, and henceforth they are powerless to create disorders on a large scale. They probably will do much less shooting than generally is seen in an American wild west film."

"What did exactly take place in Damascus on May 27?" was the next question.

"The hope the rebels had of creating a diversion to our victory at Souaida by a surprise attack on Damascus," he replied; "was frustrated by the rapidity with which we acted in the Midan quarter, where rebel chiefs, taking advantage of the departure of honest, peaceful inhabitants, and seeking refuge within the walls of Damascus, transformed every hut and mudhouse of that desolate quarter just outside the city into a veritable arsenal, containing hand grenades, rifles and ammunition."

"If eight days after the affaire de Midan the crowd in Damascus carried me on their shoulders in triumph through the city, it doubtless was because the program of new Syria satisfied the population's hopes. It was also because popular instinct was grateful to us for having spared them misfortunes and hardships which would have visited them had we adopted a passive attitude and let the bands enter Damascus as they did in October. It was a choice between the Midan quarter and Damascus, and we chose to protect Damascus."

"Are you satisfied with the elections in Lebanon?" was the next question, and the answer came: "Lebanon voted its constitution, elected its president with unanimity from the members of the chamber and senate, composed of Christians, Moslems and Druzes. Thus, it is proved that success is possible between the various tribesmen and religious denominations, heretofore engaged in a continual bitter struggle."

Syrian Government.

The last question put to M. De Jovenel was: "What about the government in Syria?"

He answered: "Syria today has a national government, composed of 50 per cent moderates and patriots and 50 per cent former revolutionaries. They have succeeded in achieving an accord among themselves and I believe their program will be realized."

"One of the aims of my voyage to France is to inform the government and parliament on the work of my investigation in Syria, which I made as French senator and delegate of the League of Nations."

NORTH PLATTE WATER BATTLE IS SETTLED

Scotts Bluff, Neb., May 30.—(AP)—Peace hovered over the water situation as directors of the North Platte Valley Water Users' association debated in a closed meeting acceptance of the latest government offer which would bring relief to parched fields deprived of irrigation benefits because of delinquent payments.

The interior department today agreed to turn the water into the irrigation laterals immediately until June 30 if the water users' association assumes maintenance and operation charges for the North Platte interstate project beginning July 1 and continuing until a joint liability district is formed by the users.

A movement has been started to buy the house in Blantyre, Scotland, where David Livingstone was born and to restore it as a permanent memorial to the famous African missionary and explorer.

Automobile Association Plans Annual Outing at Club

One of the most enjoyable features of the annual summer outing of the Atlanta Automobile association, set for the afternoon and evening of Thursday, June 10, at the Brookhaven Country club, will be the bridge party for the ladies at the clubhouse, beginning at 3 o'clock. Some very beautiful prizes have been secured to be awarded to the winners. The lake and tennis courts will be open for those who prefer this kind of sport.

The outstanding feature of the week, as in years past, will be the championship golf tournament staged during the afternoon on the Brookhaven course. From the number of entries, being received by Frank Sprattling, general chairman handling the golf tournament, this event promises to be the most interesting one ever put on by the association.

The climax to the outing will come in the evening, when a course dinner will be spread at the clubhouse, accompanied by an entertainment and followed by a dance. Those expecting to attend the evening dinner and dance must secure tickets at $2 each from the executive office, 1308 Citizens and Southern Bank building. Others coming out only for the afternoon need not secure tickets.

In addition to the bridge party, quite a number of events have been arranged on the clubhouse grounds in the afternoon for those who do not play bridge. A large number of children are expected to attend to participate in games that are being arranged with suitable prizes to be awarded to the winners.

M. & B. ROAD STATUS HEARING POSTPONED

Hearing on a proposal to junk the Macon and Birmingham railroad, running from Macon to LaGrange, which was to be held by the Georgia public service commission Tuesday and Wednesday, has been postponed until June 23, at the request of attorneys for the receivers, according to announcement Sunday.

An effort is being made to obtain authority to dismantle the Macon and Birmingham road, which has not been in operation for four years, so that about $200,000 worth of steel rails can be sold and the roadbed used for a public highway. The matter is pending before the interstate commerce commission and the hearing before the Georgia commission is for the purpose of developing facts and reporting to the interstate body.

At the session of this week a petition of the Central and Georgia railway to revise passenger schedules between Dover and Dublin will be heard, in addition to the following other petitions: petition of the Georgia railroad to discontinue flag stops for passenger train No. 3 at Swords; petition of Georgia carriers to revise rates on live stock; rule nisi against the Georgia Savannah and Atlanta railway involving lumber rates from Lexington and Woodville to Savannah.

On Wednesday the following petitions will be heard: Application of Savannah & Atlanta railway for authority to issue $500,000 in receiver's certificates for improving the roadbed and rolling stock; application of the Southeastern Express and Warehouse company, of Atlanta, for authority to issue 4,000 shares of capital stock; Macon and Birmingham railway; hearing on application before interstate commerce commission for authority to abandon its lines from Macon to LaGrange.

MRS. MARION BAKER WEDS ALBERT GOWEN

Brookline, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Kelly Elliott Baker, whose divorce from Rhea Kingsley Baker was announced from Paris, April 21, was married in the First Parish church here to Albert Y. Gowen.

an millionaire sportsman of Cleveland and Chicago. Only a few relatives and intimate friends attended the ceremony, and it was understood that Mr. and Mrs. Gowen would leave for a wedding trip aboard his yacht, Specjacks II, which recently was overhauled at a Newport shipyard. Mr. Gowen and his first wife, from whom he was divorced in Cleveland in 1924, made a honeymoon trip around the world in his first yacht Specjacks.

The Atlanta Opportunity school will stage its annual commencement exercises tonight at 8 o'clock in the Fulton High school auditorium, Washington street and Woodward avenue. Ivan Allen will deliver the principal address on the subject, "What the Opportunity School Can Mean to Atlanta."

Dr. R. M. Eubanks, president of the board of education, will present diplomas to 73 graduates, after which J. F. Cannon, state director of trades and industries, will award Opportunity school pins to 56 former graduates who have successfully completed at least one year's work in the occupation for which the school trained them.

Music for the occasion will be provided by Miss Jessie Reese Calvert, soprano, and by the orchestra of the Boys' High school. Among unusual features will be a pantomime demonstration of the various types of work taught at the school.

The Opportunity school is operated by the city for adults and employed boys and girls, and the closing exercises have been designed with a view of exhibiting the variety of classes now in operation at the school. The school will close on June 11 for the summer vacation and will reopen in September, beginning its sixth year.

Week of Campaigning Col. Smith Brookhart And Cummins in Iowa Race

Unusual Interest Centers In "Come-Back" Effort of Senator Unseated in Favor of Steck.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 30.—(P)—One week of campaigning today faced candidates in the Iowa primary, to decide whether Senator A. B. Cummins shall carry the republican banner in the November election, whether he shall make way for Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, recently unseated by the senate, or whether a compromise selection may be made.

While republican and democratic candidates are to be chosen June 7, for congressional seats and state offices, the fight of Colonel Brookhart for a "come back" and that of Senator Cummins to retain the seat he has held for 18 years has overshadowed all other issues. Brookhart, an experienced politician, has been in the state since his seat was given to Daniel F. Steck, democrat, some weeks ago, while Senator Cummins' campaign has been carried on by political friends.

Howard Clerk, a Des Moines attorney, is the only other candidate for the republican nomination who has made an extensive campaign. His candidacy has been added considerably by the uncertainty of the outcome.

Dan Reardon, of Council Bluffs, entered the campaign as a beer and light wine candidate and E. F. Bickelberg, of Waterloo, seeks the nomination on a platform of drastic reforms to level the economic balance sheet.

The vote of Senator Cummins for reelection to the world court, failure thus far of farm relief legislation, a charge that the senate overrode the election laws of Iowa in unseating Brookhart, and charges of discrimination against agriculture in the tariff, federal reserve law and the transportation act, have been the chief issues raised by opponents of Senator Cummins.

His supporters have pointed to his long service in the senate, his standing in national affairs, his activity on behalf of farm relief legislation and his party regularity, as warranting his re-nomination. Thus far the bitterness that entered into the campaign of 1924, when Col. Brookhart denounced President Coolidge and was in turn declared a traitor to his party, has been missing, although some of the Cummins backers have renewed the disloyalty charge against Brookhart in public statements.

Committee Silent
The republican state central committee, which formally protested to the senate against the seating of Brookhart as a republican has taken no part, as an organization in the present campaign. For primary nomination, a candidate must receive 37 per cent of the total vote. If no aspirant retains that ratio the battle will go into the state convention, where uncertainty still would prevail because there is no precedent binding the convention to the high runner. In the democratic senatorial race C. R. Porter, of Des Moines, J. H. Files, of Fort Dodge and J. C. Murtagh, of Waterloo. All three are attorneys and have been prominent in their party circles a number of years. The democrats are as deeply interested in the republican selection as in that made by their own party, for a continuation of the republican split over Brookhart would raise the hopes of sending a Steck partisan to Washington.

PRESIDENT OPENS WAR ON LA FOLLETTE (Continued From First Page)

for La Follette to serve on the special senatorial committee to investigate campaign expenditures. La Follette also is not particularly desirous of serving because he probably will want the committee to investigate the extent to which the national republican organization sends funds into his state to beat his ticket.

That tribute will be placarded all over Wisconsin this summer. Coolidge never has uttered such words of praise for any political candidate since he has been in the white house. He spent no words at all over the political deathbeds of those two faithful senators, McKimley, of Illinois, and Pepper, of Pennsylvania, who so recently were lowered into their political graves. The criticism of this silence among regular republicans may have prompted the praise of La Follette.

Already it has aroused hopes in the breasts of other republican senatorial candidates who have broken out in cold sweat over the praise of La Follette over Stanford, McKimley and Pepper, and the critical condition of Senator Cummins, who faces Brookhart, recently ejected from the senate, in the Iowa primaries June 7.

Previously Coolidge had insisted he would keep out of all primaries. Breaking of this rule for La Follette made it difficult for the president to refuse other pleas. But he probably will exercise great discretion and restraint about answering them.

No contest will rival in dramatic interest this David and Goliath fight with the thirty-one-year-old La Follette, fighting to hold his father's organization together against the powerful national republican organization which will throw its ample resources into the effort to beat young La Follette in the special election last September.

So far La Follette's campaign, it is the decisive fight of his life. The state and all politicians of the country are watching to see whether he has his father's political genius. If he is licked in his first big fight, he will lose control and will have difficulty in being re-elected to the senate when his term expires in 1928. If he wins, he will have his organization in control for his own campaign two years hence and he will have the prestige that would result from defeat of La Follette.

La Follette Poor.
La Follette must fight entirely without federal aid, for which the administration has given to La Follette. He will have the handicap of meager funds. His father always went into debt during his campaigns and was obliged to make chautauqua speeches to pay off his notes. He also must struggle against some internal jealousies in his organization.

The spectacle of the Wisconsin stripping, who on the senate floor resembles a clerk just out of college rather than a senator, has been such an adept and well reinforced veteran as La Follette is unique in national politics. La Follette was once a pupil of the elder La Follette who picked him up through the leadership of the legislature and then sent him to congress. There he began to break away and finally switched over to the regulars, moving into the senate under the momentum of a war-time campaign when La Follette was in difficulty.

There is something tragic in La Follette's career. He was picked by the stalwart republicans as Harding's running-mate in 1920 but the stampede for Coolidge nosed him out of the vice-presidential nomination and the white house. He was re-elected to the senate, however, in the Harding landslide. He led the republican side in the world court fight. La Follette opposed the court.

ADDRESSES CLASS
IN JACKSONVILLE
Jacksonville, Fla., May 30.—(Special).—Governor Clifford M. Walker spoke before the Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church today on the occasion of Georgia rally day and was greeted by 1,080 men, a large number being from Georgia. Every state was represented as well as Canada and many foreign countries.

For 45 minutes Governor Walker held his audience with a magnificent address on "Good Citizenship" and was frequently applauded.

IN PENNSYLVANIA
Allentown, Pa., May 30.—(P)—Two men were killed, two were missing and two were seriously injured as the result of an explosion today at the plant of the Pennsylvania Fireworks company, near this city. Continuous explosions prevented rescue work. The factory, with a large amount of explosives, was burned.

GRAVES DECORATED
AT ANDERSONVILLE.
Andersonville, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Graves of more than 8,000 Union veterans in the Andersonville national cemetery were decorated today. The annual Memorial day exercises will be held tomorrow, under the auspices of the colony post, G. A. R., of Fitzgerald, Ga.

D. Nelson, commander of the Colony post, has arranged for a special train to come here from Fitzgerald, bringing the Union veterans of that post to the cemetery.

There were many visitors here today and there will be a large crowd tomorrow, it is anticipated.

Atlanta Joins in Observance Of Decoration Day Today

UNVEILING CEREMONIES AT MARIETTA CEMETERY

Unveiling of a beautiful monument erected by Wisconsin in memory of soldiers of that state who died in the civil war, will be one of the principal features of the observance today of National Decoration day at the national cemetery at Marietta this morning. The unveiling is scheduled to take place at 11 o'clock.

As many Atlantans as can possibly do so have been urged by Mayor Walter A. Sims, in a proclamation, to attend the memorial exercises. All city employees who are members of veterans' organizations and who wish to take part in the exercises have been released by the mayor from their duties today.

Another outstanding feature of the celebration will be a parade in which members of the Grand Army of the Republic, United Confederate Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Disabled War Veterans, private citizens and school children will march. The parade will begin at the Marietta public square and will proceed through the streets to the cemetery.

Scores are expected to go to Marietta from Atlanta to take part in the exercises which will not close under the direction of Fitzhugh Lee camp, No. 6, Spanish-American War Veterans. Members of this organization ment colony are especially anxious to get a glimpse of the little man who kept the armies of two great powers off their toes for more than two years.

Krim is due to reach the big frontier military post of Tazara tomorrow morning and he probably will arrive in Fez before nightfall. While his advent will not be attended with brass bands nor a path strewn with roses he will be treated with perfect dignity and decorum.

There was a strong clamor for oriental pageantry over the slow march by his thatched mud palace at Tarzuz to the imperial city of Fez—a city he had just entered as the victor of a war which had lasted a year ago. Like a figure from Arabian Nights, Sidi Mohammed Ben Abd-el-Krim rides alone at the head of his caravan. A few respectful paces behind him ride officers of his French escort with two squadrons of Spanish horsemen keeping pace, and a platoon of both machine carbines and machine guns.

Then—hardly protected by the ranks of the Algerian rifle regiment—come Abd-el-Krim's wives and Abd-el-Krim's gold. About 210 miles will take up this caravan, laden with negotiable wealth—mostly in gold and silver coin. The money will be carried in small sacks tied to saddle bags.

Ride on Treasure.
Krim's wives, children and household servants will ride on top of Krim's treasure.

It was not without French intervention that the former emir managed to get all his wealth away from the Rif. The Rifians objected strenuously, declaring the money belongs now to the defunct Rifian government

OGLETHORPE ENDS ITS SEVENTH YEAR

SUCCESSFUL AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Impressive ceremonies marked the exercises Sunday night of the seventh annual commencement of Oglethorpe university when 45 graduates were given diplomas and six honorary degrees conferred. Exercises were held at the First Presbyterian church, and Dr. M. Ashby Jones, formerly of this city and more recently pastor of a St. Louis Baptist church, delivered the baccalaureate address. Dr. James Houth was master of ceremonies.

Honorary degrees were conferred as follows:
Doctor of divinity upon the Rev. John Fairman Preston and Dr. Henry William Bloch; doctor of commercial science, Harry Putnam Sherman; doctor of laws, Henry Morel Atkinson, William Adger Law and Meredith Ashby Jones.

This feature of the program was one of the most impressive ever witnessed in Atlanta.

Diplomas were presented to the seniors, the head of the respective department presenting graduates.

Dr. Jones spoke of faith and its great value in life's success. "In its last analysis," he declared, "all religion is an expression of faith. Christianity is no exception. 'I believe' is the preface to its most familiar phrases. Its life is largely an expression of its confidence."

The speaker declared that "much of the confusion concerning the Christian faith comes from a misunderstanding of faith, itself. 'I know' must always precede 'I believe', for there must be some foundation of knowledge on which faith is to rest."

Dr. Jones emphasized faith and belief throughout his address, pointing near the conclusion of his address to the saying of Jesus in Palestine in the first century, "Follow Me."

Sunday night's program closed the seventh annual commencement season at Oglethorpe, which got underway early last week. Each day special features marked the season, culminating Saturday when coronations were held for Hermance stadium and for the Lowry School of Commerce building. The formal opening of Lupton hall, also was an impressive part of Saturday's program.

Boston.—Having failed to leave himself out as an aristocratic slave, Currier Grover Flint is going to marry. He is 24 and the grandson of John Fluke, the historian. Two years ago he advertised himself for lease by the year. Now he is to wed Kathleen Mary Kearney, waitress.

What Is Your God? Is Topic of Sermon By Dr. Luke Rader

"What Is Your God?" was the subject of the sermon of Dr. Luke Rader, pastor of Central Baptist church, at the morning hour Sunday. He touched upon modernity and declared the only God that meant anything in the end was the great Jehovah.

Dr. Rader returned recently to the church after an extended absence in evangelistic work. At night his topic was "What Is Salvation and How to Get It." He made a strong plea for old-time religion and said the tendency of the times was for people to forget salvation.

The pastor spoke before large congregations at both services and special musical programs were rendered.

Mattress Company Reports Business Showing Increase

BY M. D. GLEASON.

This is the best season we have had since we went in business," stated Paul G. Hornbuckle, president of the Gate City Mattress company, last week, to a representative of The Constitution, who visited the busy factory at 404 Decatur street.

"You would be surprised to see the great amount of renovating work we get from many of these new families who are moving to Atlanta," continued Mr. Hornbuckle.

This firm does a big out-of-town business, as the people living in rural districts can ship old mattresses and forward letters of instruction as to what grade of ticking they want, and their old mattress goes back in two or three days almost as good as new. It will cost them about half the price of a new one of the same quality, it is said.

The Gate City always has enjoyed a fine local business but this year it is better than ever. They are getting more hotel and boarding house work than in former years, while their regular "family trade" work is nearly double.

The firm carries a fine line of the latest in ticking and have staple and fancy patterns that are sure to please the public. A phone call at Ivy 6470 will bring a representative anywhere in Atlanta with samples. The out-of-town customers get prices and samples by mailing postcards.

Pearl, a pet black and white cat living at Pawceter, R. I., the mother of four kittens, has adopted a tiny gray fox. All members of the family seem to be amiable enough, including Len, the adopted mother. The mother appears to be as fond of her as she is of her own offspring.

Snakes in India kill about the same number of persons as automobiles kill in the United States.

Germans Halt Sale of Beer On Hamburg

Order Follows Investigation Made By Federal Dry Agents.

Washington, May 30.—The German embassy has instructed the commander of the German warship Hamburg now in Los Angeles harbor to permit no more selling of beer on his ship.

This was the result of an investigation by federal dry agents who discovered that thousands of Americans were visiting the German ship and buying beer which was sold from the official canteen on board by permission of the commander.

The commander has reported to the embassy here confirming the charges and explaining that he permitted the beer to be sold because of the demand from the public and a desire to be accommodating. Thousands of bottles were sold but the commander permitted no profiteering and required the beer to be sold at the same price charged to sailors on board. The sale continued for ten days.

As the German warship is legally German territory, complications arose when dry agents discovered that the ship was serving the thirsty American populace.

The embassy here whose attention was called to the situation by the state department, will report to Secretary Kellogg that it has advised the commander to cease the practice and that no such complication will result from visits at other American ports which make the German warship a source of embarrassment to the United States.

This is the first time a German warship has visited American ports since the war.

Turners' Plane Again Wrecked On Same Field

Abbeville, S. C., May 30.—(Special.)—Captain Roscoe Turner, well known aviator, and three passengers in a big commercial airplane, narrowly escaped injury here last Thursday when the landing gear of the machine was wrecked by the pilot to avoid running into a man, a woman and a child who had strolled into the path of the plane as it landed at Taylor field.

The trip from Atlanta to this city was made in one hour and twenty minutes. It was said upon arrival here of the plane.

Captain Turner's plane came to the ground lightly and as it rolled along the field in landing the man, woman and child were seen walking across the field, directly in the path of the monster plane. To avoid running them down, Captain Turner so maneuvered his plane as to crash the landing gear.

Captain Turner stopped here to leave new parts for his Sikorsky plane which crashed into an orchard last Thursday on a one-day flight attempt from Atlanta to New York. The Sikorsky plane was carrying a number of Atlantans when one of the motors had trouble and a forced landing was made here. With two machines now needing repairs, Captain Turner stated tonight that he will remain here for about one week and then fly on to New York.

Mr. Jennings is circulation manager of The Waycross Journal-Herald.

Big Corporation In Florida Files Bankruptcy Plea

Jacksonville, Fla., May 30.—(Special.)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court here late yesterday by the American British Improvement corporation, developers of Florando club, Florando, Fla., one of the largest developments in the state.

The petition sets forth that the agreement to apply for bankruptcy was made at a meeting of the board of directors on May 27, when E. A. Usina, vice president, was authorized to file the petition. Walter A. Hall is secretary of the petitioning corporation. He and Mr. Usina are the only officers named in the petition. Thompson and Baynes, West Palm Beach, are attorneys for the petitioners.

In the schedule of claims having priority by law, Benjamin J. Hoffman, Palm Beach, Fla., alone is mentioned. His claim of $119,648.04 is listed as for work and materials furnished and labor done upon houses built upon the property of the corporation.

The petition listed assets of $2,551,518.57 and liabilities of $8,581,576.41. It is said to be the largest petition filed in this federal court district in the past ten years and probably to set an all time record for magnitude of the sum involved.

Claims secured by real estate mortgages total $8,487,548.48, including one in the name of Galt Tract, number 69 West Washington street, Chicago, for $7,250,000. Notes totaling $349,969.75 are also included in the liabilities. Of this amount $295,737.75 is listed as due Mrs. E. T. Statesbury, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa., on bonds notes issued to cover loans made over a period extending from February 8, 1926 to May 6, 1926, and varying in amounts from $250 to $50,000.

Mrs. Anna T. Dodge, Crosse Point, Mich., is also listed as the holder of notes aggregating $250,000 to cover eight loans extending from March 4, 1926 to May 17, 1926. Six of these notes are for $25,000 each and two are for $50,000 each.

TEMPORARY PROHIBITION ORDERED IN WARSAW

Warsaw, May 30.—Temporary prohibition in certain sections of Warsaw has been ordered by the Pilsudski government to avert trouble during the session of the Sejm, the Polish parliament, which opens Monday.

No intoxicating liquor may be sold in the vicinity of parliament during the session. Cafes and restaurants in the neighborhood of the Sejm will be closely watched and any infringement of the temporary order will bring severe punishment. The government has taken this step following threats against the life of Marshal Pilsudski.

War, May 30.—Parliament, government offices and important thoroughfares of the Polish capital will be heavily guarded Monday to prevent a threatened attempt to assassinate Marshal Josef Pilsudski, military dictator of Warsaw.

After the discovery by secret service men of a plot in the right wing to kill the virtual dictator of Poland before he convenes parliament Monday orders were issued under the Pilsudski forces will concentrate on the protection of their chief. Only senators, deputies, diplomats and journalists will be admitted to the parliament buildings during the sessions. The general headquarters where Pilsudski is living, is already closely guarded. Every move made by the man who recently overthrew a president and a government is being made under the watchful eye of secret service men.

The Glos Pravdy, a Pilsudski controlled newspaper, declared that chauvinists who murdered President Nizki, the Polish leader, will be killed. It asserted that the general Josef Haller, who led the first resistence against Pilsudski when he captured Warsaw, had equipped a band of young men with arms. This band, the newspaper said, left for Warsaw after swearing it would kill Pilsudski.

The movements of every person admitted to streets leading to the parliament building will be watched, and those who pass through these thoroughfares will be forced to show credentials.

Sunday Fails To Slow Down Prince's Strenuous Program

PLACES WREATH ON WASHINGTON'S TOMB

Washington, May 30.—(Special.)—Even the Sabbath failed today to slow down the fast moving program the Swedish crown prince and his party have followed since their arrival here Thursday afternoon.

His strenuous round of official calls, interviews with art explorations and duty assignments, however, was changed in complexion to fit the day. In the forenoon he and Crown Princess Louise attended services at the Lutheran Memorial church, and immediately afterward visited Mount Vernon on the Potomac's Virginia shore line. Guns at the navy yard boomed the national salute as the navy yacht Sylph with the party aboard steamed out.

Upon arrival at the home of George Washington, the crown prince proceeded at once to the first president's tomb and there, bareheaded and with bended knee, he placed a floral tribute.

been made and thus titled by no other than Mack Sennett, Whitney Hunter directs a musical program.

West End Theater.

Norma Shearer has the most unusual role of her career in "His Secretary," the Hobart Henley production which is playing at the West End theater today and tomorrow. In the first few reels of the production, she essays the role of a homely stenographer, and has employed such eccentric makeup and costumes that all her beauty is concealed.

Even in the latter part of the picture, when she blossoms out as a butterfly, traces of the original character remain, though her appearance is in marked contrast to the homely girl of the first half of the picture. Lew Cody is playing the leading male role in "His Secretary."

The Howard Theater.

Following a two weeks' excursion into the realm of grand opera and the musical classics, the Howard theater this week will present another sparkling revue by John Murray Anderson. The presentation is called "Rhapsody in Jazz" and is described as a syncretic of modern cocktail, based upon George Gershwin's recent symphonic composition, "Rhapsody in Blue." Youth, pep, vivacity, personality and artistry—these are the things that have placed Raymond Griffith on the uppermost rung of the screen ladder of fame. Ever since playing on the legitimate stage and following that, in motion picture melodrama, Ray's climb has been a steady one.

Paramount, in recognizing his natural ability for farce, has given Mr. Griffith a production unit all his own. They call it "Metropolitan."

The Law of the Talon

By Louis Tracy

INSTALLMENT XIX.
THE DOUBTFUL HEIR.

The scene spread at the girl's feet was not to be surpassed in all Scotland for richness of color and harmonious blend of mountain, lake and glen. The garden, itself a riot of flowers in full bloom, sloped to a shrubbery which merged into a belt of black firs. Through these had been cunningly thrust a wide strip of turf, spreading a smooth green carpet to the very shore of Loch Inver. At that moment the long, narrow lake reflected and softened every visible tint of blue sky, wisp of cloud, clump of woodland and purple moor.

"It is so beautiful that I want to cry!"

Mrs. Alistair Pantone—the Eileen Grant of John Pantone's dreams—was in no mood to appreciate the ever new charms of a landscape always impressively dear in her eyes, whether in sunshine or storm. Her gaze was introspective because her troubled thoughts were elsewhere. True, she had gone out into the open with set purpose. Finding herself alone in the drawing room, since the two women guests at Inverlochille had not yet returned from an extended tramp over the moors, she wanted to ascertain if the men had come up from the loch. A glance at the tiny bathhouse nestled beneath a low but steep bank which terminated the turf-covered avenue showed that the launch had not yet returned.

That there was Donald. In half a minute he would be at the door.

Turned. This was a matter of little real consequence. Dinner would not be served till 8 o'clock, a late hour, but purposely so fixed to provide a break in the long evening.

Restless and ill at ease, Eileen had gone to her room early and dressed hurriedly. Inaction was a bane just then. Even this placid interval before a meal had its own torture. If she dared yield to impulse she would have torn off her fashionable gown of turquoise blue and silver, rushed into riding kit, saddled a horse in the stable, and jogged the twenty miles to and from Mallaig. But the frigid code of social usage was fetters of its own. She was the hostess of Inverlochille and might not escape her duties in that madcap way.

Her present trouble was that Alistair had shown her the letter he sent to John. She could not pretend that its tone was other than amicable. There were phrases—one, in particular—which struck her as meaning more than the mere words conveyed, but the man whom all the world regarded as her husband stood stoutly against any alteration.

"I have my personal respect to consider as well as John's feelings," he had urged. "I think I have more than enough to do as it is. I may not be able to accomplish any satisfactory settlement of an unhappy affair for which I am not even remotely responsible, but at least I shall have tried. Really, Eileen, you are not being quite fair. Many a man would have written without telling you. Few would have shown you the actual letter. Yet you cavil at me for setting forth in the most kindly words at my command the real difficulty which the passing years will never dispense of. No, my dear girl—I either post this as it stands or tear it up."

"Will you let me read John's reply?" she said.

"Yes. I warn you it may hurt, but I shall not regret that if it ends a rather intolerable situation."

As usual, Alistair had defeated her. She simply could not argue with him. He was always so punctiliously right, so politely just and reasonable. No man could have been more considerate during their make-believe honeymoon. Even now, when she had taken her place as mistress of Inverlochille, a position she would hold unchallenged during Lord Chan's life, her husband had changed his tactics so slightly that the difference could be discerned only by a woman's intuition rather than by any exercise of her logical powers. His later manner seemed to suggest that her continued aloofness was beginning to verge on folly. She had read the proceedings in the probate division as reported in the newspapers. She knew well it was Alistair's firmness which modified his uncle's fiery refusal of any kind of support to John's claim for recognition. She had heard him reasoning the matter with her own father, who could not help admitting that the wise course was to assist, whereas defiance, which was utterly impracticable, or hostile disregard, which would be bitterly resented, could have only one incredibly stupid outcome—the blazoning far and wide of a forgotten scandal, while not invalidating the heir's legal status in the slightest degree.

She was brought into the family conclave because she alone possessed any of John's letters. Alistair did not resent even that somewhat disconcerted fact. Indeed, his attitude throughout had been altogether different. She was secretly afraid of him. At times she wondered whether she really hated him or was herself the slave of an absurd and untenable prejudice.

So Alistair's plea for a fair understanding had gone to London, and, if John took the trouble to answer at once, they could have heard from him that day. But no letter came. The post from Mallaig arrived round about two in the afternoon, and Alistair had stayed at home purposely. After tea he and the other men went on the loch. The indisposition which kept Lord Chan away from the probate division seemed to have passed suddenly, since he was able now to cast a fly thirty yards with a heavy salmon rod and had yielded to Eileen's earnest wish that he should remain in the north until the moors had been shot over. In very truth, Mr. Harvey, K. C., had toned down his lordship's anger into illness. It was just as well. Had father and son met in open court there might have been an unpleasant, almost tragic scene.

Eileen was desperately distressed by John's failure to write. He might at least have telegraphed that a letter was on the way. In the depths of her heart she had hoped, during the first week or ten days after John's return from Canada, that he would communicate with her directly. But the silence of seven years remained unbroken. Had he really banished her from his mind? Was there another girl—perhaps a wife? What a blow to her pride, what a reward for fidelity, if that were so! But, in that case, surely he would have told her. Her own marriage would supply his best excuse. And no matter what the cause of the quarrel between him and his father and cousin, why should he be bitter against her? Really, that taunt of Alistair's seemed to be justified. On all counts John was behaving badly.

Thus, while her bodily eyes dwelt unseeing on the landscape which had once moved another girl to tears by its quiet beauty, the eyes of her soul were searching restlessly for some way of escape from self-inflicted torture. Still, she was so well acquainted with every feature of life in that remote wonderland that she should fail to notice anything out of the common order of events, and it was certainly strange that the elderly postmaster should now, being coming up the drive which led to the main door on the west front. The house stood a good mile from the tiny village whose cottages clustered around the head of the loch. What was bringing old Donald Macdonald here at this hour? Not a telegram, because there was no local line, and the people at Mallaig were instructed to use their own discretion if the heavy expense of postage should be incurred in preference to delivery by mail or the occasional chance of some crofter or gillie making the journey late in the day. Lord Chan refused to send a car daily in his own behalf. He liked the conservative ways of his forebears. Why so much hurry in life?

Yet, there was Donald. In half a minute he would be at the door, since it was obvious that his errand was not taking him to the servants' quarters. At the same moment she saw the launch heading for the boat house, but its occupants could not breast the hill under five minutes if they hurried.
